Hi pinchas,

Thanks for the compliment.

As for the competitors - we know them all, I must say that we don't really feel any threat when we are presenting the idea to first responders/ municipalities / safe city companies / integrators or any other institutions. The main reasons are:

1. We are the only company that aim to replace 911 regular calls and to reduce false reports. No one of the competitors are doing video & audio calls + indoor position to the dispatchers.

2. Social features - if you aren't using it in your Daily life you won't use it in emergency (this is all what version 0.8 is focused on).

3. Most important - we are working also on a routine days (106) with proven ROI for the municipalities. No one of the companies gives added value for the municipalities current smart city systems like us (Again - saving money on false reports).

4. UX/ UI.

And more.

As for the Round A we will prepare the numbers ASAP. We will schedule a board meeting at the end of the year to present it.

Have a great weekend.

Build the system with high capabilities.
Good luck to us
